

I received a notice that a new broadcast service known as LPFM could take priority over a current FM station I listen to, and I wanted to write to share my feelings on the subject. Air One isn't "just another radio station". It is a unique Christian-based station that reaches hundreds of thousands of people across the U.S. and the world through music and positive, uplifting messages for those struggling with drug and alcohol addiction, suicide or any other desperate situation people find themselves in. Air One has four full-time pastors on staff who take phone calls from people who need prayer and support. The staff at Air One meets FOUR times a day to pray for people who are in need. What other radio station will do that? I feel Air One is a quality, necessary outreach for our community (and country!) and what a great loss it would be for hundreds of thousands of people, if it were replaced with "just another radio station" on the FM dial. Air One is making a difference in the lives of many people and should definately stay on the air. Air One is 100% privately funded by listeners like me who believe they are doing a worthy service to the public. We don't need another radio station that plays the same music as others on the dial, we need Air One because it is the only "positive alternative" for people who need something to believe in.
